Editorial by Tom Starland, Editor and Publisher COMMENTARY

It's Back to School Time

For some folks it's getting rid of the kids hanging around all day. For others it's sending them off to college. And, for another group it's gearing up for new exhibits at college and university gallery spaces.

That's one of the reasons our issues slim down during the Summer, most colleges and universities don't present exhibits during the Summer and a lot of arts organizations - guilds and arts council take vacations from presenting exhibits. Some we just don't hear from because they're dreaming of being on vacation and lose track of time

It's all good - we still have plenty to tell you about and I enjoy the slower pace. But come September - it will be raining exhibits like it was a hurricane headed for the Carolina coast (knock on wood).

Lake City, SC, Update

Other than pointing out how the folks left running things in Lake City, SC, can't manage the website for the Jones-Carter Gallery - after the purge of Hannah Davis, I haven't done my recap of the 2016 ArtFields event. but it's coming. I wanted to wait until my anger passed and it's taking a little longer than I thought. But I'll be thinking hard about what I want to say in the next two weeks - then I'll write it all down.

Down Time

By the time you are reading this I hope to be somewhere on I-75 headed North to the water state of Michigan for a long overdue vacation or in this case, reunions. Reunions with members of both sides of my family and a sort of high school reunion. Things are going so well in my hometown area that they have closed down the entire school district I'm a product of, so if you're not a fan of my style of writing - those folks who gave me my learnin' have paid the price. Of course most of them have passed on now, but their legacy is being wiped out.

Saginaw, the city where I was born, was once a lumber town and then a manufacturing town on the auto parts assembly chain leading down to Detroit. They made steering gears and engine blocks and various other auto parts in Saginaw, but not so much any more - at least not as much as they used to make them. I'm sure I'll be getting lots of stares as we pull up in our Honda. It might not be long before just as many cars are manufactured in South Carolina as are still being made in Michigan. We're making more planes than Michigan leaders dream about at night.

Michigan is no longer the manufacturing giant it once was. I left in 1974 just as the downhill slide started. But Michigan is still a recreational wonderland and with time many states will be begging to tap into its water resources. Even so, Saginaw is right next to Flint - where the people running the state poisoned everyone for over a year to save a few bucks on drinking water - but Saginaw is not that bad off. Folks who want to give tax cuts usually take money from public services to afford it.

We're hoping the kids don't burn the house down while we're gone. Unfortunately my computer and e-mail will be traveling with me, so don't hold it back until the deadline - I'll be processing some every day. My Grandfather on my Mother's side of the family was a dairy farmer - I now know what his life was like. He may have had to milk the cows every day, twice a day, but he didn't have to deal with e-mail, Facebook or Twitter. The only good thing is I don't have to take the cows with me to travel anywhere.

The City of Charleston Office of Cultural Affairs is presenting Sixteen Crowns: Manifestations of Ase, on view at the City Gallery at Joseph P. Riley, Jr. Waterfront Park, through Aug. 28, 2016. A curatorial lecture by Dr. Ade Ofunniyin and Jody Berman will be held on Aug. 6 at 2pm. These events are free and open to the public. Sixteen is the number of the cosmos. According to Yoruba belief, when the world was created, it spread out from an original palm tree that stood at the center of the world with sixteen branches, forming the four cardinal points and the sixteen original quarters of Ile-Ife. Sixteen Crowns: Manifestations of Ase amplifies the grace, majesty, and beauty of an ancient culture as reflected through art and performance, presenting paintings, drawartists. The selected works, co-curated by Dr. Ade Ofunniyin and Jody Berman, reflect a system of belief and virtue that has sustained millions of Yoruba men and women throughout the African diaspora, from those who survived the middle passage to the Americas where they were enslaved, to those who continue to seek out and find comfort, courage, genius, and strength through connection and communication with the divine.

The timing of the exhibition coincides with the international prominence and universal acknowledgement and appreciation of Yoruba people and their contributions to human kind, including an extensive visit to the United States by His Imperial Majesty, the Ooni of Ife in June, 2016. This exhibition examines the artwork of eleven artists of the Yoruba diaspora, and anticipates a more ambitious exhibition in the future that will include performance and experiential elements beyond the walls of the gallery.

The works selected for this exhibition include sculpture, paintings, beadwork, and tapestries by Yoruba artists Yinka Adeyemi, Olusegun Agunsoye, Orisanmi Kehinde Odesanya, Onabamiiero Ogunloye, Fawele Okunle, Ojo Kunle, Ilor Mayor, Adeniji Adeyemi, Gbenga Makinde, Odusina Taiwo, and Yaw Shangofemi Owusu.

in Sixteen Crowns is mostly from the personal collection of Dr. Ade Ofunniyin. Dr. Ofunniyin is an Ifa priest and anthropologist; he conducts research in the Yoruba diaspora. Dr. Ofunniyin, through his organization Gullah Society, supports communities of artists in Osogbo and Ile Ife, Nigeria by providing art supplies, financial support, and opportunities for the exhibition of their works. Dr. Ofunniyin holds a Chieftaincy title, Orisagbala in Ifon-Orulu Kingdom, Osun State, Nigeria, West Africa. He is an adjunct professor at the College of Charleston. His current research focuses on the Africanisms in Gullah Geechee language and traditions.

of Florida. She wrote her Masters thesis on Charleston blacksmith, Yaw Owusu Shangofemi, an apprentice of the late Philip Simmons. She has taught at Brooklyn College and managed Laurence Miller Gallery in New York City. After living in New York City, Berman returned to Gainesville, FL, to pursue her PhD in Art History under Dr. Robin Poynor and Dr. Paul Ortiz. Her present research focuses on African American Art and History. She is working on her dissertation, "Race, Humor and Subversion in the work of Five Artists". Berman has presented her research at several conferences including the 2015 International Summit on Human and Civil Rights in Atlanta, GA.

Charleston Museum in Charleston, SC, Presents Look at Historic Plantations

The Charleston Museum in Charleston, SC, will present Black and White: Plantation Scenes of South Carolina, an exhibit curated by Archivist and Collections Manager, Jennifer McCormick, on view in the Museum's Lowcountry Image Gallery, from Aug. 2, 2016, through Jan.

South Carolina's Lowcountry plantaons, producing both rice and Sea Island cotton, were once a major source of revenue for the region's wealthy elite. The use of enslaved labor to grow and harvest these crops created a unique existence between slave and owner that required a close but vastly different lifestyle. This exhibit will feature images of plantation houses and slave cabins along with the fields and rivers that once intertwined the lives of black and white inhabitants.

McCormick explains, "The photographers of the early 1900s understood the importance of photographing both the black and white people of Charleston and the surrounding plantations. Because of this understanding they were able to capture snapshots of the two very different ways of life on a plantation, even after the Civil War and emancipation, allowing both present and future generations to see history rather than just read history.'

A 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization, The Charleston Museum, founded in 1773, is America's first museum. Holding the most extensive collection of South Carolina cultural and scientific materials in the nation, it also owns two National Historic Landmark houses, the Heyward-Washington House (1772) and the Joseph Manigault House (1803), as well as the Dill Sanctuary, a 580-acre wildlife preserve.

Charleston Artist Guild Offers Works by Celia Wester

The Charleston Artist Guild in Charleston, SC, will present A Southern Summer, featuring works by Celia Wester, on view in the Guild Gallery, from Aug. 1 - 31, 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 5, from 5-8pm A native of Charlotte, NC, Celia Wester's artistic career began as an illustrator and designer for a corporate display company. Working in her own business from 1990 until 2001, her specialties included murals, structural exhibits and faux finishes for corporate, residential and celebrity clients throughout the Southeast.

During those years, Wester was involved in the Society of Children's Book Writers and Illustrators and was elected to design and illustrate the North Carolina state summer reading program - a 28 page booklet and collateral materials.

Throughout the years she has been accomplished in many avenues: exhibitor in the selective Cottonwood Art Festival in Richardson, TX; designer/muralist for the Northeast Medical Hospital emergency wing/pediatric floor in Concord, NC; exhibitor in the national Art Expo in Dallas, TX, and Atlanta, GA; featured artist in a number of publications and invited to show her work in various venues. The face of the 2016 Pawleys Island Festival of Music & Art will be Wester's poster titled "Sunny Day Palm"

With a versatile style, Wester presents detailed imagery and color, whether the subject is whimsical or photo-realistic. Moving to Georgetown, SC, in 2001, her focus is painting local scenery and wildlife. The color, texture and patterns of nature are the spotlight of everything in her subject matter. Her objective is to cause the bystander to be in awe of all that is around them and that we do not miss the flower, for a view of the garden.

Hall says of the paintings, "The body of work in its entirety creates a space for wonder, contemplation, and hopefully may ignite a spark of inspiration in someone. The theme "untamed" came from a simple thought of how nature is untamable, it is ever changing, cannot be controlled and is unpredictable. It then took a transition into the idea of how life can have a way of taming us or domesticating us to a fault sometimes. Really, if I'm honest, I've felt that a lot over the past few years. I've had to be very intentional to find time for myself and discover healthy routines to keep my dreams and adventurous spirit alive.'

Hall, as a recent father of two toddlers, has been working to balance his personal and professional personas. He said, "It's a new season for me with new adventures and perspectives on life that I feel are pouring over into my work. With life transitions happening, my work has been transitioning into more detailed depictions of landscapes; a more structured approach. I'm creating less vague abstract ideas of a place and more detailed brush strokes, but still keeping a loose sense of atmosphere." For example in the title piece for the show Hall has created a 36" by 36" work in oil. He said of the work, "This painting for me represents change. A healthy contemplative mindset and realization of how there is freedom in not holding on so tightly to truths but instead holding them loosely in your hands with an open mind & heart. Adding the figurative element into my landscape work is also very new and has really challenged me creatively. This is a theme I will be exploring more in

In another piece for the show titled Through the Woods Hall pulled from his personal emotions. He said, "After my co-op show with Megan Aline last year, I took a small hiatus from painting. I decided to just spend some time really pouring myself into our growing family and waiting for my next painting idea to hit me. During this time my grandpa, whom I adore, past away in his sleep. Though we were all deeply saddened, it was a beautiful time to be with my siblings and re-connect with extended family. Waking up early one morning in this tiny WV valley town, we hiked all the way up to the nearby mountainside. During our hike I came upon this overgrown storybook of an entry into the forest. Something about it just struck me, and I knew right away that this would be the first painting for my

One collector's comment in anticipation for the upcoming show is, "I own a number of Adam's pieces and plan to get one from each step of his career," Patrick Riddle from Charleston, SC, said. "For his age, Adam's use of atmosphere is currently unmatched in the contemporary art market."

Camela Guevara, and Judit Just The Southern in Charleston, SC, is presenting New Weave, featuring works by Kristy Bishop, Camela Guevara, and Judit

Just, on view through Sept. 4, 2016. The exhibit presents works by contemporary fiber artists and their use of textile techniques; old and new, natural and chemical, reworking and updating to align with current, contemporary aesthetics.

Kristy Bishop is an artist living and working in Charleston, SC. She primarily works in textiles and creates relief sculpture by handweaving, sewing, and dyeing fiber. The types of dyes that she prefers to use are gathered locally or while traveling. Her primary sources include roadside growth, gardens, and grocery stores. This supplies Bishop with onion and avocado skins, eucalyptus, coreopsis, wild fennel, Page 8 - Carolina Arts, August 2016 more. Bishop also finds it hard to resist using unusual varn such as metallic and paper yarns. She mixes these with natural dyed fibers to contrast the synthetic with

Coastal Discovery Museum on Hilton Head Island, SC, Offers Exhibit Focused on Oysters with Photos by Lewis Hine

The Coastal Discovery Museum on Hilton Head Island, SC, is presenting Oysters: Past, Present, and Future, including photographs by Lewis Hine, on view in the Hilton Head Regional Healthcare Gallery, through Sept. 8, 2016.

Oysters are more than a local delicacy. Yes, we enjoy roasting them over a fire and sharing with friends in the winter months and the more adventurous eat them raw on the half-shell. However, these bivalves provide more than sustenance. They have been used by human inhabitants to build shell rings, to pave roadways and give form to structures. For a century they have provided a living for coastal people. Ecologically, they are a keystone species that plays a critical role in maintaining the health of our waterways and our living organisms.

Historic photographs, artifacts, mariculture and conservation tools, and artistic representations tell the story of the amazing oyster at the Coastal Discovery Museum. Included in the exhibition are over a dozen photographs from the Library of Congress' National Child Labor Committee (NCLC) collection that were taken by Lewis Hine between 1908 and 1913.

The NCLC was founded in 1904 and chartered by Congress in 1907 with the mission of promoting the rights, dignity, well-being and education of children and youth as they relate to work and working. Shortly after its founding in 1912, the Children's Bureau received the photographic prints from the National Child Labor Committee. This collection of photographs depicts the conditions for immigrant, migrant workers who came to the Lowcountry seasonally to work in oyster factories and canneries.

Lewis Hine, a New York City schoolteacher and sociologist was so strongly opposed to child labor that he quit his teaching job and began to take powerful photographs of exploitative child labor for the National Child Labor Committee. He believed that child labor was in many cases child slavery, and that it condemned them to a future of illiteracy, poverty, and dependence. Although he also photographed in coal mines and factories, many of his photos represented child labor in the seafood industry.

In Hine's photographs, you can see the conditions of labor, their living conditions, and the age of the children employed.

"There is work that profits children, and there is work that brings profit only to employers. The object of employing children is not to train them, but to get high profits from their work," said Lewis Hine in 1908.

Hickory Museum of Art in Hickory, NC, Offers Works by Norma S. Suddreth

The Hickory Museum of Art in Hickory, NC, is presenting Holy Land Revisited: Works by Norma Suddreth, an exhibition which explores this NC artist's process, travels and faith, on view in the Museum's Regal & Gifford Galleries, through Oct. 9, 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 12, from 6-7:30pm.

"Observation, preservation of history, acts of goodness and honesty are elements I incorporate into my art," Suddreth said. "Gathering plants, producing pulp, preparing the foundation and painting are equally important. The ability to communicate through art about what I have discovered and believe to be important is the main focus of my work."

Suddreth was born in the Foothills of North Carolina, where the Blue Ridge Mountains and farms surrounded her small, rural community. This beautiful backdrop, along with the local church and worldwide travels affect her art today.

Suddreth specializes in two ancient arts. As a papermaker, she has developed a technique of painting with paper pulp, using her hands as brushes. Painting on pulled sheets or sculpting with pulp allows for a textured surface. Papers are then colored with hand-ground natural pigments. Suddreth also uses the art of fresco to create spiritually focused art.

Suddreth has studied at the Penland School of Arts and Crafts, Arrowmont School of Arts and Crafts and St. Michael's Institute of Sacred Art. She has received many awards and honors, and has exhibited in regional and national juried shows. Suddreth lectures and teaches workshops, often in her art studios in Lenoir and Blowing Rock, NC.

The University of South Carolina in Columbia, SC, will present Fingerreisen, an exhibition of works by Elisabeth Pellathy and Lee Somers, on view at the McMaster Gallery, from Aug. 25 through Oct. 6, 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 25, from 5-7pm, with artists' talks given at 5:30pm.

Fingerreisen is the German term for imaginary journeys taken by both the hand and the mind interacting with maps. Elisabeth Pellathy and Lee Somers use maps as a starting point for imaginary journeys and as a visual record for the experience of place. The exhibition includes traditional and experimental artistic processes including sculpture, drawing, video, and sound that investigate unconventional notions of exploring landscape.

Pellathy's maps are a hybrid of real weather maps and her own conception of how her environment might appear from above. In her video work, she investigates landforms created by alternately converging and diverging horizon lines in an ever-shifting frame, liquefying distinctions between frontal and aerial viewpoints. Pellathy is a professional artist and Assistant Professor of New Media at the University of Alabama in Birmingham, Brault is drawn to impressionism because she is much more interested in the "flavor" of a scene than a depiction of it. Her paintings allow others to get the sense of being there to really appreciate the moment. She is best known for her landscapes and streetscapes of beautiful southern places. Brault enjoys the lowcountry as well as the mountains.

Since Ed was born and raised in Maine, she sometimes visits and paints beautiful coastal Maine scenes as well. Still, Brault really loves to re-introduce Capital City residents to the Columbia that is so beautiful, right under our noses, but often overlooked. Gallery West in West Columbia, SC, Offers Summer Art Sale and Show

Gallery West in Columbia, SC, is presenting Treasures & Trifles: A Summer Art Sale, on view through Aug. 28, 2016.

Gallery West presents a summer art show full of art great and small, by artists famed the world over and in your neighborhood. The exhibition is an opportunity to discover a minor masterpiece from an earlier century, or a beautiful recent work by one of this city's promising contempo-

In honor of how hot it is this summer, patrons will be allowed to make offers on select works with no reasonable offer refused.

Now, that's hot!

Have you heard of Willem de Kooning and Jackson Pollock? Of course you have. The South produced only a couple of artists who participated in Abstract Expresonism in the 1950s, and Warren Brandt is one. This show includes a 1954 painting of a boy reading, though the boy is lost in patches of pure color.

Another exuberant 1950s painting is by James Tucker, a North Carolina artist also known for cool, hard-edged images of Hilton Head - find one of those here, too! Along with paintings, Treasures

Among the contemporary art in Treasures are paintings and drawings by Tyrone Geter, Will South, Mackey Bane, Janet Oliver, Maryanna Williams, and Pauline Majoli. And there are plenty of works of art by lesser-known and cor pletely unknown artists, little gems of creativity that call out for a good home. Who knows, one person's "trifle" is another person's "treasure"!

Come to Gallery West and decide for yourself at one of Columbia's most surprising art shows of the summer.

Gallery West shares in Columbia's creative life with art from around the world and across the centuries. Come and discover early prints and paintings, including work from established as well as emerging artists, staged with antique furniture and objects designed to make you feel at home. Fine contemporary craft is likewise incorporated into our comfortable and welcoming surroundings. A feature of the gallery is the unusual and beautifully crafted art jewelry from international, national and regional designers.

Frame of Mind in West Columbia, SC, Offers Works by K Wayne Thornley

Frame of Mind in West Columbia, SC CONFESSIONS: The Assemblage of K. Wayne Thornley, on view from Aug. 5 -31, 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 5, from 6-8pm.

Intricate constructions of wire, wood, metal, found objects and imagery are combined to create works that interpret concepts of discarded dreams, things left undone and secrets never spoken.

Thornley, who is also a painter, has been creating mixed-media assemblage work for more than 10 years with selected pieces exhibited nationally and featured in print and online publications. This show will feature new work and pieces created during the last five years. It is the first time the artist's assemblage work has been shown collectively as an exhibit.

Shards of glass, rusted wire, machine parts, and salvaged papers are some of the materials that get painted, stained, diously-crafted constructions that are both intricate and intimate. detritus of the human experience.

From the artist's statement: "Just like the patina of tarnished flatware in a thrift ore bin or the walls of an old house layered with years of wallpaper and paint, our lives are made of layers and textures of the experiences we have - good and bad. We document these experiences physically by making notes, taking photos and gathering keepsakes. Psychologically, we carry memories, replay conversations and guard secrets. Contemplation of these concepts is where this assemblage work begins."

Thornley is a graduate of the University of South Carolina where he studied art, marketing and design. His work has been exhibited throughout the Southeast and purchased for several private and corporate collections including Greenwood Genetic Center, Wachovia Bank (Wells Fargo), and Parisian (Bon-Ton Stores, Inc.) Thornley's paintings are available through City Art Gallery, Columbia, SC, Art & Light Gallery, Greenville, SC, and through the Gallery Shop at Sumter Gallery of Art, Sumter, SC.

Grovewood Gallery in Asheville, NC, Offers Works by Greg Krolick

Grovewood Gallery in Asheville, NC, will present Southern on High, a colorful, energetic body of work by Western North Carolina based folk artist Greg Krolick, on view from Aug. 13 through Sept. 18, 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 13,

Greg Krolick, known in some circles as Buffalo Hoynas Junior, was born in 1957 in Ohio. Shortly after, his family relocated to northwestern Washington, where he began to cultivate his lifelong love of making art and music. He began his life as an artist secretly painting rowdy encounters between cowboys, spacemen, and the bra models from his mother's Family Circle

Work by Greg Krolick

As a young adult, Krolick described himself as a "saddle tramp" and worked as a sheepherder in Hells Canyon, OR. Between mending fences and herding cattle, he spent every spare minute painting, playing fiddle tunes, making furniture and telling tales. His love of old-time southern music, along with his fascination with the individuals who made it, finally led him down South where he found his true spirit.

For many years now, Krolick has made his home in the mountains of Western North Carolina, deep in a holler out in Little Pine, immersing himself in nature, early country music and the satisfaction of being a "reclusive hillbilly."

Southern on High is Krolick's interpretation of "Hillbilly Heaven the glory and beauty of the Southern Appalachians." Krolick says, "My paintings are

American Folk Art in Asheville, NC, Features Works by Ellie Ali

American Folk Art in Asheville, NC, will present Ellie Ali: Memoirs, featuring paintings spanning 1997-2016, on view from Aug. 4 - 24, 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 5, from 5-8pm.

Ellie Ali is a self-taught powerhouse of a modernist painter, who, for years supported herself from the sale of her artwork, even selling in the streets of Soho, NYC, in the 1990s.

Incorporating Chinese ink, tempera, oil pastels, acrylics, graphite and her fertile imagination, Ali uses minimal strokes often layered over geometric fields of color to create paintings rife with motion and emotion. Her sojourns have taken her across the globe; her artwork reflects a worldly improvisational style. Using rhythmic lines and syncopated shadings, figures are often caught in a jazz-like groove. Faces thoughtful, not posed. Adding to the textural landscape of each painting, Ali calls the papers she collects, and paints upon, her co-conspirators.

A decade ago, Betsey-Rose Weiss, owner of American Folk Art, was introduced to Ellie Ali: "I was captured, and went about the task of representing her. It took ten years to make that representation a reality". Ali, entering her late sixties, had decided it was time to seek out gallery representation.

This show, entitled Memoirs are paintings Ali had been saving, she does not know for what exactly...from the 1990's through today. These paintings represent a visual journey of her life, each are memories along the way, presenting the arc of her career and provoking a range of emotions. Ali's personal Memoirs in painted form: evocative and mysterious.

Asheville Gallery of Art in Asheville, NC, Features Works by Jane Molinelli

The Asheville Gallery of Art in Asheville, NC, will present Layers, featuring works by Jane Molinelli, on view from Aug. 1 - 31, 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 5, from 5-8pm.

"The name of the show comes most literally from my process of working in layers of paint, but also from the more abstract sense that my work contains different layers of meaning for each viewer,' says the artist. Molinelli describes herself as a contemporary expressive painter. "Rather than capturing a scene or object, I use color and line to convey an emotional connection found in shared places, memories, and experiences."

Molinelli works both in oils and acrylics to create work that is bold, energetic, colorful, and thought provoking. She says she discovered her "art tribe" early. "Even Page 16 - Carolina Arts, August 2016

Upstairs Artspace in Tryon, NC, Offers Exhibit of Installation Artists

Upstairs Artspace in Tryon, NC, will present Filling A Void: The Art of Instal lation, featuring works by five South Carolina artists, on view from Aug. 6 through Sept. 16, 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 6, from 6-7:30pm, with talks beginning at 5pm

WESTERN NC AREA

Participating artists include: Ayako Abe-Miller, Leah Cabinum and Melissa Earley, Greenville, SC; Susan Klein, Charleston, SC; and Carey Morton, Clemson, SC. Each artist is creating a sitenecific installation in a space design for them at the Upstairs, a highly regarded contemporary art gallery since 1978.

Filling A Void would never be seen in most art galleries since installation art can take up a great deal of space and is usually not for sale," says Michele Deudne, Executive Director of the Upstairs. However, the nonprofit Upstairs rises to the challenge of exhibiting such innovative art, and artists know it is a gallery willing to take such risks.

What is Installation Art? According to Wikipedia, it is an artistic genre of three-dimensional works that often are site-specific and designed to transform the perception of a space. Generally, the term is applied to interior spaces, whereas exterior interventions are often called public art, land art or intervention art. The boundaries between these terms overlap.

Carey Morton says, "Poised in moments of frozen movement, arms, legs. hands and other aspects of the human figure allude to our ability to interact with the world. A balancing act can be seen in both formal elements as well as content,

"We are blessed with an amazing world that provides limitless vistas and vignettes of beauty, reflecting God's glory," Brass says. "With painting, I can present through imagination another view of that beauty." She explains her style as ranging from exuberantly colorful abstracts to down-to-the-whisker wildlifes with the lakes and mountains of landscapes in between. "So much to paint, such beautiful colors to paint with!" she says.

Gagnon prefers realism and impressionism, stressing simplicity of subject matter and transparency of color. Her favorite subjects are close-ups of nature in its infinite variety. She enjoys depicting sunlight on her subjects, especially the drama of backlighting. "The predominant mood of my work is quiet and speaks of an inner peace," she explains.

Eng began her art career as a photographer but wanted more texture and dimension to her work, so she began doing mixed media using papers and other textural material in her paintings. She still enjoys doing close-ups and macro photographs but now she often enhances them further with digital painting and editing.

"If I had to categorize my style," she said, "I think 'representational abstract' might fit. Whether it's in my macro abstract photography or my mixed media paintings, I usually need to be able to visualize something from the natural world - a landscape, beach scene, forest, etc. Although I had a period where I deviated toward a more traditional style, I am returning to what I enjoy most now."

Glass artist Pablo Soto creates glass forms for lighting, drinking or sculpture. In Pablo's words, he is "a maker that gravitates to purity of form and material".

Tim Turner uses color and texture with the push/pull of dark and light in his rich paintings. Florence Thomas Art School in West Jefferson, NC, Offers Celebration of Women Artists

The Florence Thomas Art School in West Jefferson, NC, will present the Corey Anne Celebration of Women in the Arts. including an exhibit of works by Wheeler Munroe, Mary-Ann Prack, and Loretta Weaver, on view from Aug. 4 - 31, 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 12, from 5-8pm. A special opening will take place at Prack Open Studio / Sculpture Garden. in Jefferson, NC, on Aug. 13, from 11am-5pm. A symposium will take place at Florence Thomas Art School, on Aug. 20, from 10am-noon, with Keynote Speaker Sally Atkins.

The Corey Anne Celebration of Women in the Arts has as its purpose, the celebration of contributions and influences of female artists at all stages of their careers and to inspire artists and patrons to encourage and support their artistic endeavors.

Sculptor/painter Mary-Ann Prack was recently awarded a grant from the Regional Artist Project of Northwest North Carolina, to create a sculpture garden adjacent to her studio in Jefferson, NC.

"I am very excited and grateful to have my outdoor sculpture in a permanent outdoor setting." And to coincide with the annual 'Corey Anne Celebration of Women in the Arts', I will have a special Studio/ Sculpture Garden opening on Saturday,

Works by Mary-Ann Prack

The Prack Studio / Sculpture Garden is now open to the public by appointment.

Mary-Ann Prack was born in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, Her background includes three generations of family artist tradition encompassing sculpture, painting and architecture. A richly creative environment was the essential basis from which she developed an appreciation, respect, and love of art and her favorite period in art history – the abstract expressionist movement. From this foundation she has developed art work that transforms her personal vocabulary of form, color, line and texture into what are spirited, serious and elegant abstractions of the human form.

Prack began her formal fine art education at the University of Guelph, Ontario, Canada, continued at the Art Institute of Fort Lauderdale and Florida Atlantic University where she studied both fine art and interior design. After working for a number of years as an interior designer Prack was eventually able to transition into creating art on a full time basis. For the past thirty years she has worked with clay as a pure sculpture medium. There is nothing traditional about her approach to or use of clay in terms of subject, design, scale or glazing techniques. She handbuilds using a slab method with specially formulated clay that has a stone-like hardness, strength and consistency suitable for large-scale clay constructions.

Prack continues to create sculpture and more recently paintings with an enthusiasm, focused energy and commitment to high quality that has been evident from the beginning. Prack has fully matured her artistic style into her own instantly that continues to garner awards and commendations from critics, collectors and fellow artists.

Wheeler Munroe is a multi-faceted maker with her hands in woodworking, upholstery, leather work and farming. She studied fine art at the UNC School of the Arts, and furniture making both at the College of the Redwoods Fine Woodworking School, and abroad at Capella Garden in Sweden. Today she produces carefully crafted leather tool belts, and farms maple syrup in the mountains of North Carolina.

Loretta Weaver, an Ashe County, NC, native, started painting with Florence Thomas. She was a homemaker with two children but still found time for her work. Now that her children are grown up and her husband has passed away she says she has "all the time in the world to paint". In addition to studying under Florence Thomas, Loretta also took workshops with John Sours and Joe Miller. Her interest in art began when she was a child and started Florence Young Thomas was a softspoken farm woman, was probably the greatest artist with many hundreds of paintings the High Country has ever produced and is known for her impressionistic style. Born in 1909 in Ashe County, NC, she lived nearby until her life ended peacefully on March 30, 2007, at age 98. Thomas began her formal training at the Philadelphia School of Design for Women, but had to return home due to illness, where she married Paul Thomas and settled on a large farm. She continued to receive professional instruction, traveling along the eastern seaboard from Maine to Florida and, at one point, studied with Carolyn Wyeth, sister of Andrew, in Chadds Ford, PA.

Thomas was a painting instructor for 20 years, helped form the Blue Ridge Art Clan, and had a dream of starting an art school in Ashe County. Upon her passing, Florence provided the means to establish a non-profit art school in Ashe County, thus continuing her legacy of providing quality instruction in the arts. In 2008, Thomas' dream was realized when the school held its first workshops. With continued growth and support, the spirit and lessons of her presence will continue to inspire students well into the future.

Caldwell Arts Council in Lenoir, NC, Features Two New Exhibits

The Caldwell Arts Council in Lenoir, NC, will present two new exhibits including: Thinking Inside the Box, featuring works by Jane Wells Harrison and Bob Ebendorf and Sculpt Mettle: Redux!, a retrospective of works by Henry G. Michaux, on view from Aug. 5 through Oct. , 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 5, from 5-7pm.

This multi-venue retrospective showcases sculpture, ceramic, and graphic works created by Henry G. Michaux between the years of 1967—1997. Dr. Michaux, a native of Morganton, NC, (now a resident of Lenoir, NC) is a graduate of Texas Southern University where he studied with noted artists and educators Dr. John Biggers and Professor Carroll Simms. Michaux is also a graduate of Penn State University, where he studied and earned Master's and Doctorate degrees during the seminal period that shaped Art Education reform and served as the foundation for the discipline-based continued above on next column to the right | arts education movement. describes the work of Henry G. Michaux as "...part of a neo-pop/junk/funk/figurative/non-objective narrative that can fit firmly into a number of artistic generational contexts." Michaux's works derive their power from his keen observation of socio-cultural nuance filtered through a lens of intellectual vigor that translates complex subjects into whimsically accept Michaux remains true to himself as he touches those among us who are willing to buy into his aesthetic sojourn. It is hoped, that by viewing this exhibition, we provide a platform for an experience that may move each of its viewers to a level of unparalleled individual discovery.

The upstairs gallery exhibit, Thinking Inside the Box, will feature artwork surrounding or containing a box, assemblage elements, encaustic and other mixed media created by Caldwell County art educators. Jane Wells Harrison and Bob Ebendorf proposed this show concept to provide a show opportunity and a new project idea to the art educators in Caldwell County.

Toe River Arts Council in Spruce Pine, NC, Offers Works by H. Allen Benowitz

The Toe River Arts Council in Spruce Pine, NC, will present an exhibit of photographic works by H. Allen Benowitz, on view in the Arts Resource Center, from Aug. 27 through Sept. 10, 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 26, from 5-7pm.

This special two-week exhibition will catalogue his impressions from his travels in Nepal, Sri Lanki, Singapore, and Benowitz's passion began as a child snapping pictures of friends. It evolved over the decades with divergent career paths until finally resurfacing. The first photograph he submitted for recognition received honorable mention in the International Kodak Contest. From there, a professional court reporting and video career, segued to photography, and the accolades followed from featured articles and exhibitions to national and international honors and awards.

Benowitz's camera captures the serenity of the Himalaya's in Bhutan, a land of monasteries, dzongs and dramatic topography; of Nepal, birthplace of Buddha and the highest peak in the world; of the tropics and plains of the island nation Sri Lanka, off the south coast of India; and of yet another island, but of lights and continuous excitement—Singapore, wrapped inside the tip of Malaysia. To be noted is that Nepalese photographs were taken shortly prior to the earthquake in April of 2015. They preserve the many beautiful, historical sites and architectural treasures razed by the devastation.

Benowitz has lectured extensively on his journeys, exhibited nationally, and has his work in collections and galleries around the country was in Celo, an artist community nestled in the North Carolina mountains, when the sisters were six years old, and Yater was enrolled as a beginning student in photography at Penland School of Crafts. Through the years, Yater has continued documenting moments in the lives of Hannah and Molly and has compiled an historic exhibition from this collection. The study incorporates the sisters' evolution, Yater's own photographic growth, and the transition from film to digital.

In describing her journey of self discovery, Yater says, "While studying education, I exchanged the confines of graduate school for the classroom of the world. During my travels, I experienced an epiphany in the Australian Outback at Uluru, Ayers Rock. After a brief rain, the evening light burst through gray clouds striking the rock. The sacred monolith was set ablaze into a fiery red display, and a double rainbow poured over Uluru. In that moment, it was revealed - there was an artist within, and I must pursue the study of photography." This mission led Yater to North Carolina, to Penland, to Hannah and Molly, and to the unfolding of this story.

Yater specializes in storytelling images of women and children in organic and natural settings. It is her love for, and understanding of people, that is both enthusiastically and brilliantly exhibited in her photographs.

Yater has photographed Good Morning America's Love at Times Square, and her work appears on national and international book jackets, magazine covers, in international magazines, advertising and print work illustrations, and in galleries and fine art exhibitions. Yater's work has received numerous national and international awards

Blowing Rock Art & History Museum in Blowing Rock, NC, Offers Works by Elizabeth Bradford

Blowing Rock Art & History Museum in Blowing Rock, NC, will present Elizabeth Bradford: Time + Terrain, curated by Carla Hanzal, on view from Aug. 13 through Nov. 19, 2016. A reception will be held on Sept. 1, from 5:30-7:30pm.

"What an honor to be hosting the paintings of Elizabeth Bradford," states Lee Carol Giduz, Executive Director at the Museum. "Viewing her work is a conversation with nature. At a distance, the scene appears before you as through an open window and draws you in, while up close, you experience the intricate details, dramatic colors, and the many qualities of brushstrokes. What unfolds are stories of the layered and delicate beauty of our natural world." Bradford gleans images from the rural landscape surrounding her family's ancestral farm in northern Mecklenburg County, where she lives. The expanded scope of her artwork also includes impressions of countries she explores, as well as the wilderness where she kayaks, hikes, and camps. "Slowly, over time, my attention turned to wild places," explains Bradford. "I found myself breathing deep sighs of relief when I stepped out of civilization and into the forest ... I have come to believe that I am now painting the permanent - that wildness will never be fully controlled."

Hanzal adds, "While the natural terrain is mutable - affected by seasons, weather conditions, and light - human interventions also significantly impact its evolution as global temperatures rise and untrammeled habitat is developed. Bradford's paintings both eulogize what is being lost, and offer glimpses of the untamable existing beyond control." Bradford constructs complex compositions, utilizing precise layers of color and dynamic mark-making to evoke form, light, and shadow. Bradford compares her paintings to the tessera in a mosaic or the pixels of a photograph, fracturing the image into its component parts, which then coalesce into a whole. Her paintings invite contemplation of the familiar and the lovely within a natural setting, but the uncanny of the unknown and the mysterious also beckon.

Nork by Elizabeth Bradford

Elizabeth Bradford: Time + Terrain invites the viewer to study the natural world, to explore it deeply. The exhibition includes 40 paintings of various scale some large and encompassing, and others that are more intimately scaled, all reflecting her naturalist's sensibilities. Revealing her recent investigations with sites in the Southeast, several paintings are borrowed from museums within North Carolina, where her paintings have been selected for permanent collections. The exhibit explores, in part, the historical continuum f the region's natural environment serving as an essential source of inspiration. Bradford's eloquent writings chronicling her various insights and observations are incorporated into the exhibition and accompanying hardcover catalogue. The full-color, 64-page catalogue features an interview between Bradford and the curator, Carla Hanzal.

Bradford studied art at Randolph Macon Woman's College, the University of North Carolina, and at Davidson College, and recently completed a residency at the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts and at Skopart on the Greek island of Skopelos. She is represented in numerous corporate and private collections, and was included in the United States' State Department's Art in Embassies Program, which places representative work by American artists in embassies around the In 2006, Bradford was chosen as the featured artist for North Carolina's first statewide Women's Conference. She has had many solo exhibitions, including Bradford's work explores intricate formal patterns found in nature and reveals a personal experience of color. Though representational, there is a connection with the traditions of abstract art, as well as the Pattern and Decoration movement and Pop Art. Benson is an international artist who has shown in Colorado, New York, Virginia, and Tennessee, where he was born. He has also had public commissions in Australia, Vermont, Colorado, and New York. His gallery work deals with the relationship between his personal faith and beliefs and his engagement with society while his public sculptures deal with the traditional relationship of scale and form.

NC Pottery Center in Seagrove, NC, Offers Two New Exhibitions

The North Carolina Pottery Center in Seagrove, NC, is presenting Penland Clay: Shaping North Carolina Ceramics, on view through Oct. 29, 2016, and Josh Floyd: Artist-in-Residence Retrospective, on view through Sept. 10, 2016.

Penland Clay: Shaping North Carolina Ceramics explores and showcases the Penland School of Crafts clay program's continuing influence on North Carolina ceramics. This story is told through the work of current and former Penland core students and resident artists who live and work in our state.

The exhibition was guest curated by Rob Pulleyn, with narratives by Gay Smith and Carey Hedlund.

Featured artists include: Stanley Mace Andersen, Paulus Berensohn, Cynthia Bringle, Geoffrey Calabrese, Cristina Córdova, Jon Ellenbogen, Susan Feagin, Maggie Finlayson, Terry Gess, Jane Hatcher, Michael Hunt, Shawn Ireland, Tom Jaszczak, Michael Kline, Suze Lindsay, Jeannine Marchand, Karen Newgard, Marsha Owen, Jane Peiser, Ronan Peterson, Ron Propst, Gay Smith, Tyler Stoll, Tom Suomalainen, and Mark Warren.

Approximately 50% of the pieces in the exhibition are available for purchase. Purchased pieces must remain with the exhibition until after its end date.

Work by Michael Kline

Josh Floyd offers the following about his retrospective, "This exhibition is the culmination of my work as the Artist-in-Residence at the North Carolina Pottery Center. While continuing to focus on wood firing and salt glazing my own work, I have had the unique opportunity to be immersed in Seagrove's rich and diverse culture of pottery making. If the influence of Seagrove past and present is not immediately evident in my current body of work, my time here will certainly continue to inform my pots for years to come. Many thanks to the staff of the North Carolina Pottery Center in their support of my efforts as Artist-in-Residence."

All of the pieces in the retrospective are available for purchase. Purchased pieces must remain with the exhibition until after its end date. Floyd also has some of his work available in the Center's gift shop that may be taken home immediately.

The mission of the NC Pottery Center is to promote public awareness and appreciation of the history, heritage, and ongoing tradition of pottery making in North Carolina through educational programs, public services, collection and preservation, and research and documentation. To do so, the Center represents all North Carolina potters, from Native Americans and exemplars of the old utilitarian tradition to the well over 1,000 potters working throughout the state today.

The North Carolina Pottery Center will hold its annual gala & auction, Going, Going, Gone to Pots!, on Saturday, Sept. 24, 2016, from 6-9pm, at CAM Raleigh (Raleigh, NC's downtown contemporary art museum). Learn more, see auction items, and purchase tickets at (www.ncpcgala.org). Theatre Art Galleries in High Point, NC, Features New Exhibits

Theatre Art Galleries in High Point, NC, will present several new exhibits including: LINDA GRITTA: On the Surface of the Deep End, on view in the Main Gallery; CINDY TAPLIN AND SARAH KELLY: Realism Altered: A Genetic Inclination, on view in Gallery B; and The Hallway Gallery will exhibit the art work of our area art teachers and The Kaleidoscope Youth Gallery is hosting the Annual Summer Art Camp Exhibit. All these exhibits will be on view from Aug. 25 through Sept. 23, 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 25, from 5:30-7:30pm.

Linda McCane Gritta is a painter from Asheville, NC, who knew from a very young age that she would become an artist. Many years and several life chapters later, Linda decided to devote herself to that childhood wish in earnest and since then has never looked back. It is with newfound energy and eagerness that she faces each new canvas, almost as someone who is making up for lost time.

Gritta finds "unspeakable beauty" all around, so she lets the paint speak for her where words leave off. She delights in both representational and abstract subjects. Whether she's using acrylics, oil paints or mixed media, she creates a visual vocabulary in her paintings that is personal and yet somehow universal.

Work by Linda McCane Gritta

"Color is my endless delight and constant challenge," says Gritta. "It's the relationship of mark to mark, color to color that draws me in and keeps me searching. It's that push-pull of intuition and intellect, chaos and balance, control and surrender that we see all around us in nature that I can't resist when I'm painting. It is my hope that the paintings I make might offer you, the viewer, a jumping-off place; a reason to slow down, a chance to leave the mundane for the mysterious, even for just a few moments."

Originally from Chicago, Gritta has most content continued above on next column to the right my work."

As their friends, fellow artists and clients know, the Streeters have just lost the lease on their studio, workshop and gallery they have utilized in historic downtown Conway for many years. Their landlord has tripled the monthly rent for the workshop which has forced them to move into a light industrial area nine blocks I away, but still in Conway. The Streeters have been instrumental in creating an arts district and destination in downtown absence from the downtown arts district will leave a void for that area. Since they are in the process of moving many of their works for sale will be available through the gallery through Sept. 10.

The works included in this show present a broad spectrum of the Streeters' work including hand blown glass vessels, ornaments and vases, wall mounted sculptural forms and mixed media sculpture.

The first floor gallery features sculptural works, some mounted on the walls, and gallery installations of new works where the artists have combined glass with weathered wood. These works, juxtaposing the delicacy, transparency and light of blown glass forms with natural and organic wood, are a delight to the senses. Each is its own mini environment where the viewer is caught and engaged, exploring the way in which glass and wood interact and inform each other intimate works. Included here are forms that suggest birds nests and eggs, blown glass "horns," and varieties of vases. Also in the second floor gallery are three ornaments designed for the Christmas Tree at the White House in Washington, DC, and an installation of nearly 100 hand-blown smaller glass ornaments in every imaginable color.

NC Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount, NC, Features Works by Katrina Parker Williams

NC Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount, NC, will present Kidney Warriors: Strong People Living with Kidney Disease, by Rocky Mount artist Katrina Parker Williams, on view in the Mims Gallery, from Aug. 19 through Sept. 26, 2016. A reception will be held on Sept. 23, from 7-8:30pm.

This exhibit will kick off NC Wesleyan College's Dunn Center 2016-17 20th Anniversary Art Exhibition Season.

Williams, a self-taught artist, is exhibiting 40 paintings that chronicle her life as a person living with kidney disease. The artist will include portrait paintings of people living with kidney disease and subjects that draw our attention to support systems that have a positive impact on patients dealing with the disease. In addition, Williams has painted portraits of caretakers, coworkers, and family members, who make it possible for patients to live with a quality of life, as well as images featuring dialysis machines, needles, and various medications

Williams asked three dialysis patients to become her primary subjects and whose stories of dealing with kidney disease were so inspiring to her. Their strength and positive attitude towards the disease showed her that she was not alone in her struggles with the disease. Medical staff and doctors, who are instrumental in helping the patients live with a quality of life, were also asked to participate in the exhibit, along with co-workers who made it possible for the artist to continue working for thirteen years after she was diagnosed with kidney disease.

The purpose of the exhibition is to raise awareness of the serious health issue that kidney disease is. The exhibition will focus on life-saving and life-sustaining treatments, which include dialysis and kidney transplantation. In addition, the exhibition will bring awareness to the need for living kidney donors.

Fine Art at Baxters Gallery in New Bern, NC, Features Works by Donna S. Slade

Fine Art at Baxters Gallery in New Bern, NC, will present an exhibit of works by colored pencil artist Donna S. Slade, on view from Aug. 12 through Sept. 30, 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 12, from 5-8pm, during the downtown Art Slade's contemporary colored pencil, pastel and acrylic paintings are imagined planned and executed in a representational, realistic style. The paintings are not a photographic moment in time but represent a unique artistic interpretation through observation.

Slade emphasizes movement, pattern, light and dark in her paintings. She incorporates ten to fifteen colors in a cross-hatch and layering effect to build bold color values. Her work is diverse in subject matter, ranging from still lifes that take a close-up look at the beauty of ordinary objects, to landscapes that capture the grace and rhythms of nature. She loves being involved in the creation of a variety of concepts.

Slade's passion for art has taken her from a 30-year award-winning career in advertising, marketing, art/direction, design and illustration. She has recently becoming a full time painter. Slade has earned local and national recognition, winning many fine art awards in solo and group exhibitions. Her work has been published in The Best of American Pastel Artists & Artisans, Volume 1, The Best of Colored Pencil, Colored Pencil Society of America Signature Showcase, CP Treasures Colored Pencil Masterworks from Around the Globe I, CP Treasures Volume II, CP Treasures Volume III, IV and Step-By-Step Design Magazine.

Craven Arts Council in New Bern, NC, Offers Works by Eileen Wroe

The Craven Arts Council in New Bern, NC, will present an exhibit of original plein air oil paintings by local artist, Eileen Wroe, on view in the Director's Gallery at Bank of the Arts, from Aug. 5 -31, 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 12, from 5-8pm.

Wroe says that for her, "painting is like time-travel. I'm transformed to a different place. It's quiet and I'm surrounded by brushes, paint and canvas." She paints in the plein air tradition, going to locations and painting them on the spot from life. Her use of oil paints with this technique lends itself to strong use of atmospheric perspective and impressionistic brush strokes, highlighting the play of light in the natural setting. The work gives immediate feedback as to the subject matter, but invites detailed study of textures and layers. Wroe herself says, "when I observe my final painting, I wonder how it all hap-

Wroe began painting after her retirement from a 20 year career in corporate meeting planning. Her first formal training came in watercolors during her ten years in Martha's Vineyard, MA. After moving to New Hampshire she began working in oils, under the guidences of Lois Griffel and Susan Sarback, followers of the American Impressionist Charles Hawthorne of the Cape Cod School of Art.

Wroe moved to New Bern in 2011, and is a member of many professional artist organizations, including Coastal Carolina Plein Air Painters and being Vice President of the Twin Rivers Artist Association for the past two years. She maintains her current studio at Community Artist Will on Broad Street in New Bern.

Cameron Art Museum in Wilmington, NC, Offers Exhibit Focused on Women Artists

The exhibition She tells a story at Cameron Art Museum in Wilmington, NC, on view through Sept. 11, 2016, includes work from Mary Cassatt and Minnie Evans to Barbara Chase-Riboud and Shahzia Sikander. The exhibition celebrates the work of fifty-two visual artists from Cameron Art Museum's permanent collection and connects the forms of visual and literary arts. Exploring the catalytic Page 28 - Carolina Arts, August 2016 relationship between visual imagery and text, Cameron Art Museum invited fourteen Wilmington-area writers to compose new work inspired by these selections. creators by the quality of their work. However, their gender and societal mores within the time they lived shaped their identity as artists, their work and the interpretation of it. By acknowledging and questioning these effects, this exhibition hopes to highlight the many contributions. past and present, of women in the visual and literary arts.

"Focusing on women artists for the exhibition She tells a story, presents an opportunity to reflect their stories, to share their message. And by engaging local writers we are able to extend the narrative into the present through the lens of interpretation. In this way each artist's work is seen within a broader context and helps to personalize the experience of both the visual and literary art,: says Holly Tripman-Fitzgerald, chief curator Cameron Art Museum.

Writers participating in this exhibition include: Anna Lena Phillips Bell; Karen

NC Museum of Art in Raleigh, NC, Offers Works by Old British Masters

The North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh, NC, will present History and Mystery: Discoveries in the NCMA British Collection, on view in the Museum's West Building, from Aug. 6, 2016 through Mar. 19, 2017

The exhibition showcases the best of the NCMA's permanent collection of Old Master British paintings and sculpture from 1580 to 1850. It marks the first time in 40 years that the NCMA has organized an exhibition focused on British art from its collection.

Anchoring the exhibition is an extraordinary group of nine Elizabethan and Jacobean aristocratic portraits from about 1580 to 1620. These works have been the focus of an ongoing research project involving the NCMA Conservation and Curatorial departments and students and faculty from University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill and Duke University. The portraits were given to the Museum in 1967 by North Carolinian Col. James MacLamroc, and, because of their condition, have rarely been exhibited since. Now, after six years of research on all of the paintings and conservation treatment to four of the nine, they go on view to the Several teams are conducting the collaborative research: from the NCMA, the project is led by associate conservator Perry Hurt and curator of European art Dr. David Steel; from UNC-Chapel Hill, art history research is pursued by associate professor Dr. Tatiana String and her graduate students; from Duke University, analytic research is directed by adjunct associate professor Dr. Adele de Cruz and others. More than 30 scientists, art historians, and conservators from the US and UK have contributed to the research project.

"We see these portraits as glimpses into a particular moment in time-cultural time capsules, in other words," says Perry Hurt. "We've made exciting discoveries by changing how we look at the paintings and by asking new questions." In the six years since the project began, researchers have expanded their study, looking for clues to answer questions including:

Questions being asked are: Who are the people, or "sitters," portrayed in these works? While many of the paintings bear inscriptions identifying the sitters, research has indicated that many of the sitters cannot be those previously identified. Who were the artists who painted them? Research has shown that, although most portraits from this period have been attributed to only a few known British artists, there were actually hundreds more portrait painters active in Britain at the time than previously thought.

Who were the original and subsequent owners? Researchers looked at a variety of clues to reconstruct the provenance, or ownership history, of the portrait group such as typewritten letters, 19th-century references to the portrait group, and more.

What may be hidden underneath the layers of paint? Conservators used X-ray technology and reflectography to study the paintings, as well as laser technology to clean them. These tools helped them to gain insight into the original appearance of each painting, which had changed over the centuries with the fading of colors, abrasion, and overpainting by later restorers. Discoveries included finding out that an article of clothing originally featured a bright red pattern, since faded, and realizing that an entire figure was not part of the original portrait and was painted at a later date.

these paintings? One portrait was painted on cedar wood - a rare support material for this period. Conservators also discovered that gold leaf and silver leaf were used to accurately portray the luxurious garment worn by one sitter - an extravagant display of his wealth and social standing.

When were these works painted? Researchers looked for several clues to help them accurately date each painting The most significant evidence included the fashionable garments and accessories worn by the subjects in the paintings, which enable costume historians to accurately date the clothes - and therefore the paintings.

The exhibition also provides the opportunity to reexamine familiar favorites in the collection from new perspectives and to display a few "hidden treasures" that have rarely - or never before - been on public view. Hillsborough Gallery of Arts Offers Works by Alice Levinson, Pringle Teeter, and Lolette Guthrie

Hillsborough Gallery of Arts in Hillsborough, NC, will present Dreaming in Color, featuring works by Alice Levinson. Pringle Teeter, and Lolette Guthrie, on view from Aug. 22 through Sept. 25, 2016. A reception will be held on Aug. 26, Alice Levinson, a textile artist, writes of her experience preparing for the show, "In October, 2015 I participated in the X Florence Biennale in Florence, Italy, an international exhibition of contemporary art. My body of clothworks was awarded the Lorenzo di Medici Bronze Medal in Textile Arts. These works will be among those I will be showing in the Dreaming in Color exhibit in Hillsborough."

"Starting with white cloth, I experiment freely with dye, pigments, and printing techniques to create cloth which is complex in texture and rich in visual interest," adds Levinson. "The fabric is cut or torn and pieces are mixed and melded as I assemble my work. Each composition is built of successive layering of fabric and thread. I aim to create works that engage the viewer and delight the eye with movement and vibrant color. Raw edges are honored and loose threads purposefully retained. My intuitive work process encourages spontaneity and experimenta-

"By nature, I am an observer of people and the natural world," continues Levinson. "Musings, scribbled phrases, and gestural sketches follow. These suggest themes, visual motifs, a palette. My intention in place, I reach for the cloth and then the magic begins. Image, line, and pattern find their way though my hands into the work in a remarkable way. My task is to stay open and responsive to the 'voice' of the cloth. 'Listening' Page 30 - Carolina Arts, August 2016 with my hands as well as my eyes, I work to facilitate the creative flow. This isn't easy, but is always satisfying, and often, surprising.

Glass artist Pringle Teeter describes he new work for the show, "Colors, bright and bold run through my work in many variations. The combinations of different metals in some of the glass colors produce spectacular reactions. Many years ago I studied painting and the artist ris Lewis had a huge impact on my work. Now, I've taken this vision into my glasswork applying colors to create bold, irregular stripes on my vessels."

"Another use of color in my work is in my incalmo bowl pieces," says Teeter. "Incalmo is fusing together multiple glass pieces to make a single vessel. These have to be done very carefully and require a great amount of precision. I've combined 4-6 different colors in these vessels to make wide stripes in the bowls - some colors are analogous, others are contrasting to make a bold statement."

Lolette Guthrie writes, "I am a landscape painter. I work largely from memory so my paintings are reflections on what I experienced at a particular time in a particular place. They are also always paintings of light and atmosphere as I continually strive to capture the ephemera nature of the light remembered. I begin each piece with a general idea of time and place and then let the painting tell me where and how far to go. As a result, I am never sure what the end result will be because at some point each piece takes on a life of its own and I just follow along."

"For Dreaming In Color, I concentrated on exploring the use of color, especially in the sky, that almost alone would give the viewer a sense of space, light, time of day, temperature, and weather. In most pieces, the foreground is the accent note," dds Guthrie.

The Hillsborough Gallery of Arts (HGA) is owned and operated by 22 local artists and represents these established artists exhibiting contemporary fine art and fine craft. HGA's offerings include acrylic and oil paintings, sculpture, ceramics, photography, textiles, jewelry, glass, metals, encaustic, enamel, and wood.

University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, NC, Offers Works by Burk Uzzle

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, NC, is presenting All About America: Photographs by Burk Uzzle, on view at the Ackland Art Museum, through Sept. 11, 2016.

This exhibition of 42 works traces the distinguished career of photographer Burk Uzzle and his observation of American society, from the turbulent politics and countercultural revolution of the 1960s to the present. All About America represents five decades of photographs by this North Carolina native, from iconic photos of Martin Luther King Jr.'s funeral, the Woodstock music festival, and anti-Vietnam War demonstrations to his later study of the social landscape of America from coast to coast.

With a perceptive and often loving eye for the complexities of life in the US - the strange things ordinary people do and the altered landscapes in which we live - Burk Uzzle combines the sharp observation of continued above on next column to the right | the outsider with the ironic understand-

FRANK Gallery in Chapel Hill, NC, Offers Two New Exhibits

FRANK Gallery in Chapel Hill, NC, will present All That Glitters, featuring works by Gordon Jameson, Sheila Stillman, and the duo Samantha Henneke and Bruce Gholson of Bulldog Pottery, and African American Quilt Circle, Durham, NC, featuring works by members from the Triangle, the Eastern US, and even Central America, on view from Aug. 9 - Sept. 4, 2016, with a reception on Aug. 12, from 6-9pm. Artists' Talks will be given on Aug. 18, beginning at 6pm.

August at FRANK offers two exciting and unique exhibitions to help you forget the summer heat! All That Glitters, showcases four artists who use iridescence, texture, and a variety of media -from pottery to oil painting to jewelry - to dazzle and entice both art lovers and collectors. Our Michael and Laura Brader-Araje Community Outreach Gallery features work from the African American Ouilt Circle. an award-winning group of fiber artists committed to preserving the heritage of African-American quilting.

The shimmering texture and golden hues of the diverse work by artists in All That Glitters pairs perfectly with the summer heat! The exhibit spotlights the artists Gordon Jameson, Sheila Stillman, and the duo Samantha Henneke and Bruce Gholson of Bulldog Pottery, and features artwork which employs luminous surfaces and striking intricacies that are much more

Work by Bruce Gholson

Gordon Jameson's polychrome oil paintings reflect musings on natural and cosmic processes. His paintings for this exhibition offer a glimpse through the gold shimmer on the surface of a pond. He invites the viewer to plunge beneath the water and into a meditation on the nature of small and great things.

Sheila Stillman, from her studio in Durham, crafts jewelry in 22 karat gold, Argentium silver, and fine gemstones. She is highly skilled in the ancient technique of granulation, a delicate and complex process which makes for jewelry that is far more intricate than it might appear at first glance.

The highly collectible pair, Samantha Henneke and Bruce Gholson, share a long-time love of ceramics and opened their studio Bulldog Pottery, named for their two beloved canines, in 2000 in Seagrove, NC. Inspired by natural aesthetics, particularly the flora and fauna around Seagrove, the pair create ceramics that are textured, sophisticated, and dynamic with the use of different glazes, designs, and ways of manipulating their clay. Together, these artists showcase the dazzle and radiance of natural forms, and wow the viewer with the complexities of their surfaces.

For the month of August, the Michael and Laura Brader-Araje Community Outreach Gallery will feature the work of local artists in the African American Quilt Circle (AAQC) in Durham, NC. The quilts made by the AAQC feature traditional block-quilting, original designs, and fiber art, quilted by hand as well as by machine. The AAQC is committed to preserving the tradition of quilting in the black community and takes seriously its dedication to community education and Originally founded in Durham in 1998 by four African American women quilters, the AAQC now encompasses members from the Triangle, the Eastern US, and even Central America. The AAQC is an award-winning group of quilters that meets monthly in Durham to share instruction and resources on quilting as well as support for new members. The AAQC is very involved in community outreach in the Triangle area: they donate quilts to community members (including premature babies at UNC Hospitals) and exhibit their work as artists at cultural festivals around North Carolina. Quilts and fiber art made by members of the AAQC has been published in quilting magazines around the world, featured on local television shows, and has been showed in local, regional, and international quilt exhibitions.

FRANK gallery is a 501(c)(3) non-Franklin Street Arts Collective, with support from community leaders and art lovers.

The mission of the Franklin Street Arts Collective is to support the arts community of Chapel Hill and the region, strengthen community appreciation of the arts through educational outreach, and promote Chapel Hill and North Carolina as a major arts destination. FRANK offers workshops, salons, and innovative programs that reach out to diverse groups within the community.

City Art Gallery in Columbia, SC, will present McElveen Clan: Photographs & Images by Fred McElveen, Sandy McElveen, and Clay McElveen, on view through Sept. 3, 2016. Dr. Fred McElveen is a retired Columbia-based physician with a specialty in dermatology, but he is also an award-winning photographer. Sandy McElveen is a South Carolina native, who now lives in Landrum, SC. He likes to say that he "grew up in a darkroom". He spent many hours learning the fundamentals of photography under the close tutelage of his father. Fred McElveen. Clay McElveen is a native of Columbia, SC, who got his first inspirations for photography from his father Fred McElveen, helping him in the darkroom as a child. With his vivid imagination and desire for it to come to life, Clay began working with film photography and capturing the character and personalities of toy miniatures in still life scenes. City Gallery at Joseph P. Riley, Jr. Waterfront Park, 34 Prioleau Street, Charleston. Through Aug. 28 - "Sixteen Crowns: Manifestations of Ase". A curatorial lecture by Dr. Ade Ofunniyin and Jody Berman will be held Saturday, Aug. 6 at 2pm. Sixteen is the number of the cosmos. According to Yoruba belief, when the world was created, it spread out from an original palm tree that stood at the center of the world with sixteen branches, forming the four cardinal points and the sixteen original quarters of Ile-Ife. "Sixteen Crowns: Manifestations of Ase" amplifies the grace, majesty, and beauty of an ancient culture as reflected through art and performance, presenting paintings, drawings, textiles, and sculptures by Yoruba artists. The selected works. co-curated by Dr. Ade Ofunniyin and Jody Berman, reflect a system of belief and virtue that has sustained millions of Yoruba men and women throughout the African diaspora, from those who survived the middle passage to the Americas where they were enslaved, to those who continue to seek out and find comfort, courage, genius, and strength through connection and communication with the divine. The works selected for this exhibition include sculpture, paintings, beadwork, and tapestries by Yoruba artists Yinka Adeyemi, Olusegun Agunsoye, Orisanmi Kehinde Odesanya, Onabamiiero Ogunloye, Fawele Okunle, Ojo Kunle, Ilor Mayor, Adeniji Adeyemi, Gbenga Makinde, Odusina Taiwo, and Yaw Shangofemi Owusu. artists continually stretch the definitions of artistic as means for illuminating character, disposition, and even inner psyche. With "Spoken: Portraits in Black", the CMA is highlighting the power and tradition of the portrait as meaningful genre with a nod to the dynamic contributions of African-American artists. Community Gallery, Through Oct. 23 - "Big & Bold: Selections from the Collection". Artists often decide to work large, and when they do, it is for a reason: size matters. Something big commands our attention, as opposed to something tiny that might escape our gaze altogether. In this entertaining new show, we invite you to experience the variety of possibilities to be enjoyed with outsized art. The exhibit features several well-known artists, including Chuck Close, Jim Dine, Philip Guston, Vik Muniz, Lorna Simpson, Sandy Skoglund, and Andy Warhol. With a wide variety of contemporary work. Community Gallery, Through Aug. 21 - "DESCENT: Mississippi Delta Photographs. 1999-2014". These photographs consist of work made in the Mississippi Delta over a period of 15 years. In the fall of 2001, Kathleen Robbins relocated from New Mexico to the Delta to live on her family's farm, Belle Chase. She ate from her great-grandmother's china, drank from her crystal, and slept in her bed. Her family's history and their connection to this place were markedly present in her everyday experience. It is not her nostalgia alone that pulls her to this area; it is that of her mother and her mother's mother. BB&T of SC Gallery, Through Aug. 7 - "Daufuskie Memories". Through a series of over 60 photographs taken from 1977-1982, Jeanne Moutoussamy-Ashe vividly and poignantly captured African-American life on Daufuskie Island, South Carolina. In that time, Daufuskie Island stood alone as the last South Carolina sea island untouched by the outside world, serving as a home to residents whose Gullah lifestyle, traditions, and language were preserved because of their isolation. Recognizing this unique culture and the need to capture this way of life, Moutoussamy-Ashe used her camera to chronicle the life of the island. Presented by BB&T. Wells Fargo Interactive Education Gallery, Through Aug, 15 - "I, Camera Obscura: Steffi Brinkmann". Each vear USC hosts a Photography Portfolio Review at the CMA. Established professionals from all over the country serve as reviewers of the students' work and provide feedback, professional opportunities, and advice. From these one-on-one reviews they submit the top three standout photographers to USC Professor and Photographer Kathleen Robbins, who organizes this event. This year, Steffi Brinkmann's work was chosen as best in show. Brinkmann graduated from the University of South Carolina in 2016 with a BA in Media Arts. She is interested in experimental processes and exploring how photography and film can change and expand in response to current platforms and technologies. In this exhibition. Brinkmann seeks to address the personal difficulty of bonding with and understanding others. Galleries 5 & 6, Ongoing - "Modern & Contemporary Art from the Collection". Celebrating some of the CMA's greatest hits, this exhibition features over 30 paintings, drawings, photographs and sculptures on view recently. It offers the visitor experiences both serious and sensual and is designed to both entertain and enlighten. Notable works included are by Jasper Johns, Howard Thomas, Sally Mann and Edward Ruscha, whose famous image of the Hollywood Hills (on view) has become a staple of the art world. Ray Taylor Fair Gallery, Ongoing - Featuring a new and permanent installation of its ancient art collection. The installation includes approximately 50 objects that introduce the major ancient civilizations from the Mediterranean and Near East. Examples of the earliest form of writing from 12th century B.C. Mesopotamia, are shown next to Egyptian scarabs and Greek painted vessels. The world of the ancient Romans is represented by 2nd century glass and bronze items and portrait sculpture. Many of these works have not been seen since the Museum moved to its location on Main Street in 1998. The collection has grown over the last several years with the donation of 12 fine Roman sculptures in 2002 from Pennsylvania collector Dr. Robert Y. Turner. Florence reclaiming and redefining the language we use to construct the categories of race. It includes the "Paper Bag Test," an interactive installation that invites the public to define and reclaim skin tones and color as associated with race. Focus Gallery, Through Feb. 26, 2017 - "Arriving South," an exhibit sponsored by McLeod Health, features a selection of paintings, prints, and drawings from the Florence County Museum's existing permanent collection and the museum's Wright Collection of Southern Art. Historical and artistic nterpretation guides the museum visitor through the primary themes of labor, leisure, landscape and religion, while revealing the similarities and differences between observation and representations of the South in the art of the 20th century. During the early 20th century, realist artists from diverse backgrounds converged on the American South. Arriving Southsurveys works by these artists whose individual approaches to specific subject matter have influenced the perception and cultural identity of the South. The exhibition features the work of Thomas Hart Benton. William H. Johnson, Gilbert Gaul, Anna Heyward Taylor and Alfred Hutty. Special Exhibit Gallery, Through Aug. 9 - "BLACK! The Art of Tyrone Geter". The exhibition is a provocative and visually rich exhibition which explores historically familiar, yet shifting and pervasive issues of modern American life. In his recent body of work, South Carolina artist Tyrone Geter combines his technical skill as a draftsman with an organic. experimental approach to the medium of paper, resulting in unique works whose formal character is both traditional and contemporary. His larger than life compositions often employ the human figure not only as a subject, but as a surface upon which his own nuanced observations of African American culture are inscribed and abstracted with an iconic, personal vocabulary, inviting us to question our place as individuals in the complex social fabric of society. Community Gallery, Ongoing - This exhibit introduces visitors to the history of the museum and its formative collections. This gallery also exhibits the histories and diversity of the City of Florence, and the incorporated municipalities of Florence County. Additionally, the Community Gallery communicates the lives, stories and accomplishments of significant past and present citizens of Florence County and members of it's communities. This gallery is one of two permanent exhibit spaces designed by award winning exhibit design firm, HaleySharpe Design. Pee Dee History Gallery, Ongoing -This is the largest gallery space in the facility, comprising 3,300 sq. ft. of exhibit space. This permanent collections gallery occupies the entire second floor, east wing of the building. Artifacts are supported by historical images and narrative interpretation, giving a comprehensive introduction to the Pee Dee region from prehistory to the present. artcentergreenville.org). Greenville County Museum of Art, 420 College Street, Greenville. Through Sept. 11 - "Jasper Johns". Jasper Johns is the world's most critically acclaimed living artist. His work bridges the immediate post-World War II modernist trends of Surrealism and Abstract Expressionism with subsequent movements of the 1960s, including Pop art, Minimalism, and Conceptual art. While his reputation is international, Johns has deep roots in South Carolina. Born in 1930, he grew up in Allendale, the Columbia area, and Sumter; he attended the University of South Carolina for three semesters before moving to New York to pursue his career in art. Through Sept. 11 "Right Before Your Very Eyes: Art + History". Drawn from the GCMA's permanent collection, this exhibition invites viewers to consider the narratives of specific people and places that together tell the story of the nation. Organized thematically, the exhibition explores the pottery of potter and poet David Drake, who lived as a slave in South Carolina's Edgefield District. The stories of other slaves and freedmen are highlighted in Stony the Road We Trod, while When Worlds Collide depicts a few of America's most turbulent conflicts, both domestic and foreign. Through Sept. 11 - "The Poety of Place". Amid the cacophany of an election year, the exhibition offers a respite and reminder that our country, and particularly the South, is home. From the colorful streets of New Orleans to the misty bayou of Louisiana to the undulant Smoky Mountains. "The Poetry of Place" invites you to re-discover America, where a picture is worth a thousand words. Ongoing - "Grainger McKoy: Recovery Stroke". Grainger McKoy age to Sumter, South Carolina. McKoy attended Clemson University, earning a degree in zoology, while also studying architecture. After graduating, McKoy apprenticed for 18 months with the renowned bird carver Gilbert Maggioni in Beaufort, South Carolina. McKoy initially produced realistic carvings, but slowly began transforming these intricately carved birds into gravity-defying sculptures that played with form and space, while continuing to accurately render each species in detail. His work has been shown at the High Museum of Art, Brandywine River Museum, Brookgreen Gardens, and many other galleries. Ongoing - "South Carolina Icons". Consider the work of three African-American artists from South Carolina, David Drake, William H. Johnson, and Merton Simpson. Their work echoes the stories of slavery, the struggle for equality, and the Civil rights movement. Admission: Free. Hours: Wed.-Sat.,

Museum & Gallery at Heritage Green, Buncombe and Atwood Streets, downtown Greenville. Through Aug. 2017 - "The Art of Sleuthing," inviting sleuths of all ages to explore the intrigues of forgery, provenance, steganography and Nazi-looted art. "It's coming to see art in a new way," said M&G curator John Nolan. Nolan's description is accurate as The Art of Sleuthing blends both the creative and scientific aspects of art together in an enticing manner. A primary highlight of the exhibit showcases two stellar examples of forgery, including a loan from the National Gallery of Art in Washington, DC. Titled "The Smiling Girl", this piece was originally attributed to Vermeer until closer investigation proved it a fraud. Continuing the theme, the forged "Still Life with Fruit" on loan from the Nasher Museum of Art at Duke University exemplifies modern art fakes. Admission: Yes. Lancaster

The Springs House, Lancaster County Council of Arts, 201 West Gay Street, former City Hall, Lancaster. Through Aug. 31 - "Observe and Assemble," featuring a paired exhibit by Cory Williams and Anna Melton from Asheville, NC. These two artists construct their work using components they've collected--Williams' creative process starts with thinking about the environment in which he uses metal pieces to weld his work into three-dimensional objects. Williams describes his work by stating, "The quiet nature of my work is intended to be welcoming. Simple lines and composition are elements I strive for, hoping to invite the view to take a closer look at detail". Melton gathers data in the form of hundreds of photographs taken from one pivot point. She then chooses images to combine into a final panoramic composition. These images, containing up to 8 gigabytes of data and called "gigapans", depicts her subjects in settings that show something important about their lives. The printed photographs are huge, many of them 10 to 15 feet long. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 8am-5pm; Fri., 8am-3pm; or by appt. Contact: 803/285-7451 or at (www.lccarts.net).

Work by Joe Lipka

bassador Loop, Cary. Through Aug. 13 - "Joe Lipka: A Winter Day, a Summer Morning". The artist states "I drove down Academy Street past a cottage I photographed more than twenty five years ago. The light was so beautiful I dashed the days' plans and came back to photograph. There was neither preparation nor plan that day. There was beautiful light and that is sufficient." Through Aug. 13 - "Bibelot (bib-lou): n. an attractive or curious trinket". Janine LeBlanc makes attractive and curious trinkets. Using 11o seed beads, and an off-loom peyote stitch technique, she explores notions such as the answers to all of the guestions in the universe. Many of her explorations will be exhibited in the Page-Walker lobby. Aug. 16 - Sept. 24 - "Flowers of Italy: Sonia Kane". A reception will be held on Aug. 19, from 6-8pm. Fields of lavender, poppies, and sunflowers inspire this series of oil paintings with nature's vibrant palette. Artist Sonia Kane recreates this vibrancy through her limited palette of three primary hues - red. vellow, and blue - to take the viewer on a peaceful stroll through the blooming colors of Italy. Aug. 16 - Sept. 24 - "Peter Marin: Weight as Real". A reception will be held on Aug. 19, 6-8pm. The exhibit is a personal investigation and exhibition which began in 1996 at the Art Collective Gallery in Berkeley, CA. The project's title reflects two of the ideas that drive Marin's work: gravity and reality. The exhibition has been realized 14 times in multiple galleries and exhibition venues in New York, California and now in Cary. Aug. 16 - Sept. 24 - "Orange: An International Mail Art Challenge," presented by the Carolina Mixed Media Art Guild. A reception will be held on Aug. 19, from 6-8pm. Latin American Contemporary Art Projects (LaCa), 1429 Bryant Street, in the heart of the revitalized FreeMoreWest neighborhood. Charlotte. Through Sept. 3 - "Repetitions," featuring an exhibit of works by Santiago Quesnel. Quesnel's intention to create mutations and variations of the same mental image, resulting in an examination of non-traditional landscapes generated from the intersection of record, experience, and memory. While the ethereal scenes might initially appear conventional, a discovery occurs—a burst of color in an otherwise subdued palette, an object that seems out of place, or subtle traces of human inhabitance, or perhaps, interference. The landscapes confront the viewer, resulting in a mixed sensation of a melancholic absence of something unknown against a vibrant and beautiful scene. Quesnel's process is slow and multi-layered, and plays upon his desires to realize his own universe through repetition. Ultimately reaching numerous outcomes of work with a play on the same theme, he takes pure and simple spaces where perspective is neither clear or logical. and creates a fascinating reality. Ongoing -LaCa Projects is a platform dedicated to the presentation, development, and promotion of Latin American art and culture within the United States. The gallery encourages cross-cultural dialogue by representing a small group of influential and thought-provoking contemporary emerging and mid-career artists, as well as exhibiting a broader range of work by established and Master Latin American artists. ing - "Contemporary British Studio Ceramics:

The Grainer Collection". Focused on the collection of Diane and Marc Grainer, this installation is a survey of contemporary British studio ceramics.

Comprising functional and sculptural objects made between the 1980s and today, the show features work by artists either born or residing in Great Britain, including established "contemporary classics" like Gordon Baldwin and Rupert Spira, and cutting-edge ceramicists such as Julian Stair and Kate Malone. Several recentlygifted works from the Grainers are included. Alexander, Spangler, and Harris Galleries, Ongoing - "Portals to the Past: British Ceramics 1675 - 1825". The Mint Museum's collection of eighteenth-century British pottery and porcelain is widely respected for its scope and quality. The collection numbers over 2,000 objects and includes important examples of both salt-glazed and dry-bodied stoneware from Staffordshire; tin-glazed earthenware from Bristol, Liverpool, and London; and cream-colored earthenware from Derbyshire, Staffordshire, and Yorkshire. Notable eighteenth-century porcelain factories represented include Chelsea, Bow, and Vauxhall in London, Longton Hall in Staffordshire, Worcester, Bristol, and others. Individual works in the collection are exceptional because of their rarity, craftsmanship, provenance, or as representative examples of particular types or methods of production or decoration. Ongoing - "American Glass". Work by Taylor White

GreenHill, a space for NC art, 200 North Davie Street, Greensboro Cultural Center, Greensboro Main Gallery, Through Aug. 24 - "Gallery Nomads Asheville," an exhibition highlighting North Carolina's regional art centers. Five Asheville art spaces will set-up camp all summer in The Gallery at GreenHill and present an exhibition of their choosing in 500 square feet of space. Participating art centers include Blue Spiral 1, Black Mountain College Museum + Arts Center, Asheville BookWorks, Pink Dog Creative and REVOLVE. Cited as a "Top 25 Small Cities for Art" for the past 12 years, Asheville has been described as an "artist's utopia." This exhibition will look closely at Asheville's art scene, from leading commercial art gallery Blue Spiral 1 representing major southern artists for 25 years to the artist collective studio space Pink Dog Creative, one of the first to be established in Asheville's River Arts District. In addition to works by contemporary Western NC artists, visitors will be able to see works by 20th century masters such as Joseph Albers and Kenneth Noland from the collection of Black Mountain College Museum + Arts Center. InFocus Gallery, Through Aug. 12 - "Coastal Works," features works by painters Robert Irwin and Ellen Hathaway, and sculpture by Robyn Horn. Irwin moved to the coastal city of Beaufort, NC, where he pursued his painting career and his love of sailing. Motivated by his desire to simplify life and live near the water, it appears in most of his paintings. Robyn Horn is influenced by the nature of the material and its resistance to being changed. Ellen Hathaway's paintings calm and temp the senses, using the vibrancy of organic forms found in nature while inviting you within the painting to meditate intimately, imagery dissolves into expressionism, becoming more about paint, gesture and energy. Aug. 17 - Sept. 18 - Raleighbased artist Taylor White has exhibited her compelling figurative paintings focusing on the fragility of the human body in solo exhibitions in Melbourne, Australia and Oslo, Norway. White's exhibition coincides with the creation of a wall mural in the 100 block of East Friendly Avenue came to attention in the early 1960s as a key

ist art. His artworks frequently are distillations of objects translated into a broad expanse of a single hue or a rigid geometric form. Yet, while his name is synonymous with such abstraction,

Kelly also created a more lyrical body of work-

seem effortless, yet are the result of acute study

Bronze by Henri Matisse

Weatherspoon Art Museum, University of North Carolina - Greensboro, Cone Building, Tate and Spring Garden Streets, Greensboro. Gallery 6, Through Oct. 16 - "Henri Matisse: Selections from the Claribel and Etta Cone Collection." Examples of lithographs and bronze sculptures by Matisse, part of the Claribel and Etta Cone bequest to the Weatherspoon Art Museum, will round out this celebration of one of the twentieth century's best known and admired artists. Matisse felt his artworks should be quick. gestural exercises that captured the form and emotion that the subject evoked in him. He once said. "I have always tried to hide my efforts and wished my works to have the light joyousness of springtime, which never lets anyone suspect the labors it has cost me...." Working in different media often helped him work out compositional and stylistic problems as well as formulate new ideas. This focused exhibition will explore one of Matisse's enduring themes, the female body. The Leah Louise B. Tannenbaum Gallery, Through Aug. 20 - "Single-Channel Catalyst: Alex Hubbard's "Eat Your Friends" and Selections from the Collection". Humorous and tense, systematic and chaotic—these seemingly mismatched descriptors capture the playful complexity of Alex Hubbard's video works. In his 2012 piece, "Eat Your Friends," the artist experiments with stacking full cups of coffee, climbing precariously balanced ladders, arranging coat hangers and walking canes, and pouring and spraying paint. He describes these disjointed endeavors as explorations that are similar to a child's taking apart a toy to see how it works: each presents a formal held on Aug. 5, from 5-7pm. Highlands

The Bascom, a center for the visual arts,

323 Franklin Rd., covered bridge entrance at the end of Main Street, Highlands. Greehey Atrium Gallery, Through Aug. 27 - "Contemporary Craft Series: Brian Fireman". Fireman is a furniture designer specializing in handcrafted contemporary furniture. His education in architecture was fueled at an early age by a fascination with building. At Virginia Tech, he became intrigued with the tectonic nature of building, how the forces generating a particular structure are revealed through a choice of construction and materials. While working for a high-end residential architecture firm, it became clear that he missed a truly hands-on approach to both designing and building, and in 2003 Brian Fireman Design emerged. Joel Gallery, Through Sept. 4 - "Ben Owen III". Owen is an American studio potter working in Seagrove, North Carolina. Theatre Art Galleries, High Point Theatre, 220 East Commerce Avenue, High Point. Main Gallery and Gallery B, Through Aug. 5 - "THE ART OF LOUIS F.VOORHEES". Born in Michigan and raised in Ohio, Louis Voorhees earned both of his Bachelors and Master's degrees in architecture at the University of Michigan. During World War I, he was in the First Camouflage Corps: and after the war he worked as an architectural draftsman in San Francisco, CA. There he associated with many of the great artists of the Bay District. He left the West Coast in 1921, to join the faculty of the School of Architecture at the University of Virginia. In 1924, Voorhees came to High Point, NC, where he began his career with architect Herbert Hunter, practiced on his own, and then formed a partnership with Eccles Everhart in 1938. In 1959 Everhart and Voorhees took on a third partner, George C. Conner, Jr. and practiced until his retirement in 1965. Hobgood speaks about her work, "I create figurative assemblages from found objects with a particular interest in using materials from historic sites. Until a few months ago, I lived in a restored 1880 cotton mill village called Glencoe, near Burlington, NC. It is a treasure trove of industrial waste and castoffs from history! I have collected barrels and boxes full of scrap metal, wood, ceramic, paper, glass, and plastic from the ground, from under old houses, from the river, and from deserted mill buildings. up the environment by donating their discards to me in piles on the front porch of my separate, much larger studio." Aug. 24 -Sept. 24 -"Equine Abstractions." featuring works by Laura Hughes. A reception will be held on Aug. 26, from 6-9pm. Hughes paints large scale equine abstractions that focus on the monumentality and beauty of the horse as a figure. Hughes is a Graphic Designer as well as a Fine Artist. She enjoys designing for the professional business community but she also embraces the self directed challenge of fine art. She uses the iconic image of the horse as the starting point to get paint on the canvas and as a source for shape, form, and color. Her images transcend the equine identity and present a monumental approach that is interchangeable with the human figure as an art reference. Louise Wells Cameron Art Museum, @ intersection of Independence Blvd. & South 17th Street, Wilmington. Aug. 13 - Jan. 15, 2017 - "Unbound Narrative". The book, like art, represents our desire to document, communicate and understand the details of human existence. Increasingly, contemporary artists have been exploring the function, structure, and content of the book to create new relationships and interpretations - altering our conception of what the book can be. Unbound Narrative looks at the work of nine contemporary artists who utilize the book as medium and inspiration to create their visual narrative. Artists in the exhibition include: James Allen. Doug Beube. Andrew Hayes, Guy Laramée, Math Monahan, Tom Philips, Susan Porteous, Diana Fonseca Quiñones and Tim Rollins and K.O.S. Through Sept. 11 - "She Tells a Story". From Mary Cassatt and Minnie Evans to Barbara Chase-Riboud and Shahzia Sikander, The exhibit celebrates the work of women artists from CAM's permanent collection and connects the art forms of visual and literary arts. Highlighting this long historical relationship, CAM has invited fifteen Wilmington-area women writers to contribute text (of their chosen format) on select works from the exhibition. The juxtaposition of the artwork with the written word will illuminate how these artists and writers explore their experiences, perspectives and world views through their chosen medium. Writers participating in this exhibition include: Anna Lena Phillips Bell; Karen E. Bender; Wendy Brenner; May-lee Chai; Cara Cilano; Amrita Das; Nina de Gramont; Dina Greenberg; Malena Mörling; Khalisa Kelly Rae; Celia Rivenbark; Gwenyfar Rohler; Emily Smith; Bertha Todd; and Margo Williams. This exhibition is sponsored in part by Corning. Extended thru Sept. 11 - "Patchwork North America: Paintings by Virginia Wright-Frierson". From extensive travel by road and by air, Virginia Wright-Frierson (American, b. 1949) has created over one hundred paintings framing scenes, as if looking through a window, across the United States and Canada. She describes her intent, "We do see pollution and trash, factories, car accidents and roadwork. graffiti even on cactus and near petroglyphs, and much of North America is prairie that seems empty and unchanging for miles on end But what I want to paint is the power of nature evidenced in storms, erosion, rock formations, and water: the adaptation of plants and animals to any environment, from the high mountains and glacial lakes of Banff. Alberta to the deserts of Arizona, the unspoiled vastness and endless variation, and the spirit and celebration survival." Through Sept. 13 - "Looking Within: Encaustic Painting by Helen Lewis". A reception will be held on Sept. 13, from 6-9pm. Artist, Helen Lewis is from from Carrollton, OH. The encaustic process uses molten beeswax combined with resin and oil pigments that are fused with a blow torch. Helen Lewis often includes bits of old script, text or other ephemera in her work. She explains, "I particularly love the luminous qualities and depth of layers that emerge as I fuse the various elements and pigments together." The paintings in this exhibit provide glimpses and hints of those layers and invite the viewer to look deeper within. Lewis describes her creativity as an extension of her contemplative nature, "In creating, I work to follow the nudges I sense within my spirit. In essence, I am invited deeper and I seek to mirror that invitation through my art." Through Sept. 30 - "Full Circle," featuring new art by Elizabeth Darrow, Traudi Thornton, and Susan Francy.
