Work by Gaston Locklear

Lowcountry Artists Gallery, 148 E. Bay St., Charleston. Apr. 1 - 30 - "Driftwood and Decay," featuring works by Gaston Locklear. A reception will be held on Apr. 4, from 5-8pm. Locklear offered the following statement, "There's something profoundly captivating about the way time and nature leave their mark on things. The weathered, imperfect objects often carry a deeper story; a history that adds character and significance. This is especially true around the marine environments I grew up in. With seascapes as my subject matter, I illustrate the passage of time using heavy texture and neutral tones combined with a variety of mediums, letting the materials guide me as I work. The end product echoes human aging: the grace in wear, the dignity in change, and the art and what remains." Ongoing - Featuring works by Norma Morris Cable, Fran J. Davies, Lynne N.
